Oak Creek, WI – The Global Directory of Who's Who is proud to honor Dr. Daniel E. Hyatt, D.C., for his outstanding contributions to the field of Chiropractic care and holistic health. A respected practitioner and educator, Dr. Hyatt has devoted his career to improving the well-being of his patients through advanced Chiropractic methods as well as a strong belief in the power of nutrition.

Dr. Hyatt earned his Doctor of Chiropractic degree from Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa. Dr. Hyatt married his gradeschool sweetheart, Carrie, in 1987 during his time in Chiropractic school. He then went on to open Hyatt Chiropractic in Oak Creek, Wisconsin, in 1992. Dr. Hyatt further expanded his expertise by furthering his nutritional knowledge, and is also a Nutritional Counselor. He has taken further nutritional studies from Harvard. His approach to patient care is both scientific and compassionate, rooted in a deep understanding of the body's mechanics and nutritional needs.

At Hyatt Chiropractic, Dr. Hyatt employs a wide range of cutting-edge methods including Chiropractic Biophysics (CBP), which uses gravitational angles to promote correct spinal alignment, The Gonstead Method, focusing on precise spinal adjustments to restore nerve function, and The Activator Method, a gentle technique used to relieve pain and inflammation across the body. These methods, combined with his passion for nutrition and whole-body wellness, make Dr. Hyatt a leader in patient-centered Chiropractic care.

Beyond his professional life, Dr. Hyatt is a devoted family man. He and Carrie share a beautiful life together filled with love, children, and grandchildren. His personal, professional, and spiritual journeys are deeply intertwined, reflecting a commitment to both family values and lifelong health. His patients benefit not only from his clinical expertise but also from the warmth and integrity that define his practice.

For his decades of service, dedication to excellence, and continued contributions to the advancement of Chiropractic care, Dr. Daniel E. Hyatt is a deserving member of the Global Directory of Who's Who.
